Involvement in School Ceremonies

Should P&C Associations be involved in School Ceremonies?

As the official representative of parents and community in the school, the P&C Association should be involved in all ceremonial and special occasions at the school. These cover such things as the opening of a new school or of new buildings, libraries, etc. in established schools, Education Week, sports days, centenaries, and community events in which the school is involved. On such occasions the P&C Association will of course act with the Principal in co-ordinating parental involvement.

Does the President have to attend all of the events?

No. Your P&C Association may elect representatives to attend specific events on their behalf. This may indeed be the President but it is also suitable to choose who represents your P&C Association from within your membership. Invitations to events should be placed on the agenda of your next meeting for discussion.
